

About sleep deprivation and no single sunray

Making new friends of another country is a difficult thing, because of the differences in language and culture. So it was an exciting thing to host Spanish students for a whole week in our hometown Luckenwalde. We had the worst weather conditions with low temperatures and a lot of rain, but nevertheless we undertook a lot, what made us really busy, because the Spanish wanted to see as much as possible in this few days. These undertakings exhausted us a lot, and we got very short of sleep...

On the 4th day we went to our capital Berlin. To my mind, that was the most stressful but also a great day. We saw lots of sights for example the Reichstag, where we had to wait about an hour and where we congratulated Nico on his birthday.

It was a great pleasure to meet the Spanish people, especially my exchange partner Tomàs, a really open minded guy with a large interest in sports. It was a bit difficult for us, because Tomàs could not sleep at my house. But fortunately, Hannah gave him a home for this week, so I think we managed this problem very well. After the Spaniards had left Luckenwalde, I was glad to go to bed and sleep a long time...
