

My Impressions of the project week

I was very nervous and excited at the beginning of our project week, because I just knew Cris from our chats on msn.

But then it worked very well, because we got on fast. We didn't speak German very often, so we talked with each other in English and with hands and feet. My favourite day was the trip to Leipzig, because it was my first time at the memorial „Völkerschlacht Denkmal“. I'm very happy that the exchange worked without any problem and that we got to know good, new friends. Just the test was a little bit bad, because I thought that we had made good presentations and that they were good enough to teach the Spanish students, but some of the results showed that the presentations weren't good enough. I'm looking forward to visiting Barcelona in March!
