

Spain - Germany

☺ The week was great ☺

Before this week I was thinking about: what will happen? Will we understand each other? What happens if we have problems with translation? But after this week I knew all these worries didn't become true. We had a lot of fun and I miss the Spaniards. I think we will have a lot of fun in Barcelona, too.

I felt relieved when we got to know each other and had fun together. But sometimes the organisation to go home (maybe going by bus or train or better by car...) was difficult and in the first hours it was difficult to speak English and translate so much.

My family was learning, too. They liked it to do such an experiment and got to know the other country, culture and language. We all together had a lot of fun. And they learned English better and some new words. But it was okay.

When I should say which day was the best in this week I couldn't tell you because the Spanish-German-lesson, the barbecues, the tours through the cities, the familyday and a lot of other things was so great.

I didn't have so many problems with my English. It was great and I was surprised about myself ☺
